

The application would load in this state by default. The user can also return to this state by checking the “How old am I?” option or by pressing the “recalculate” button after performing their initial calculation with the “How old am I?” button checked.

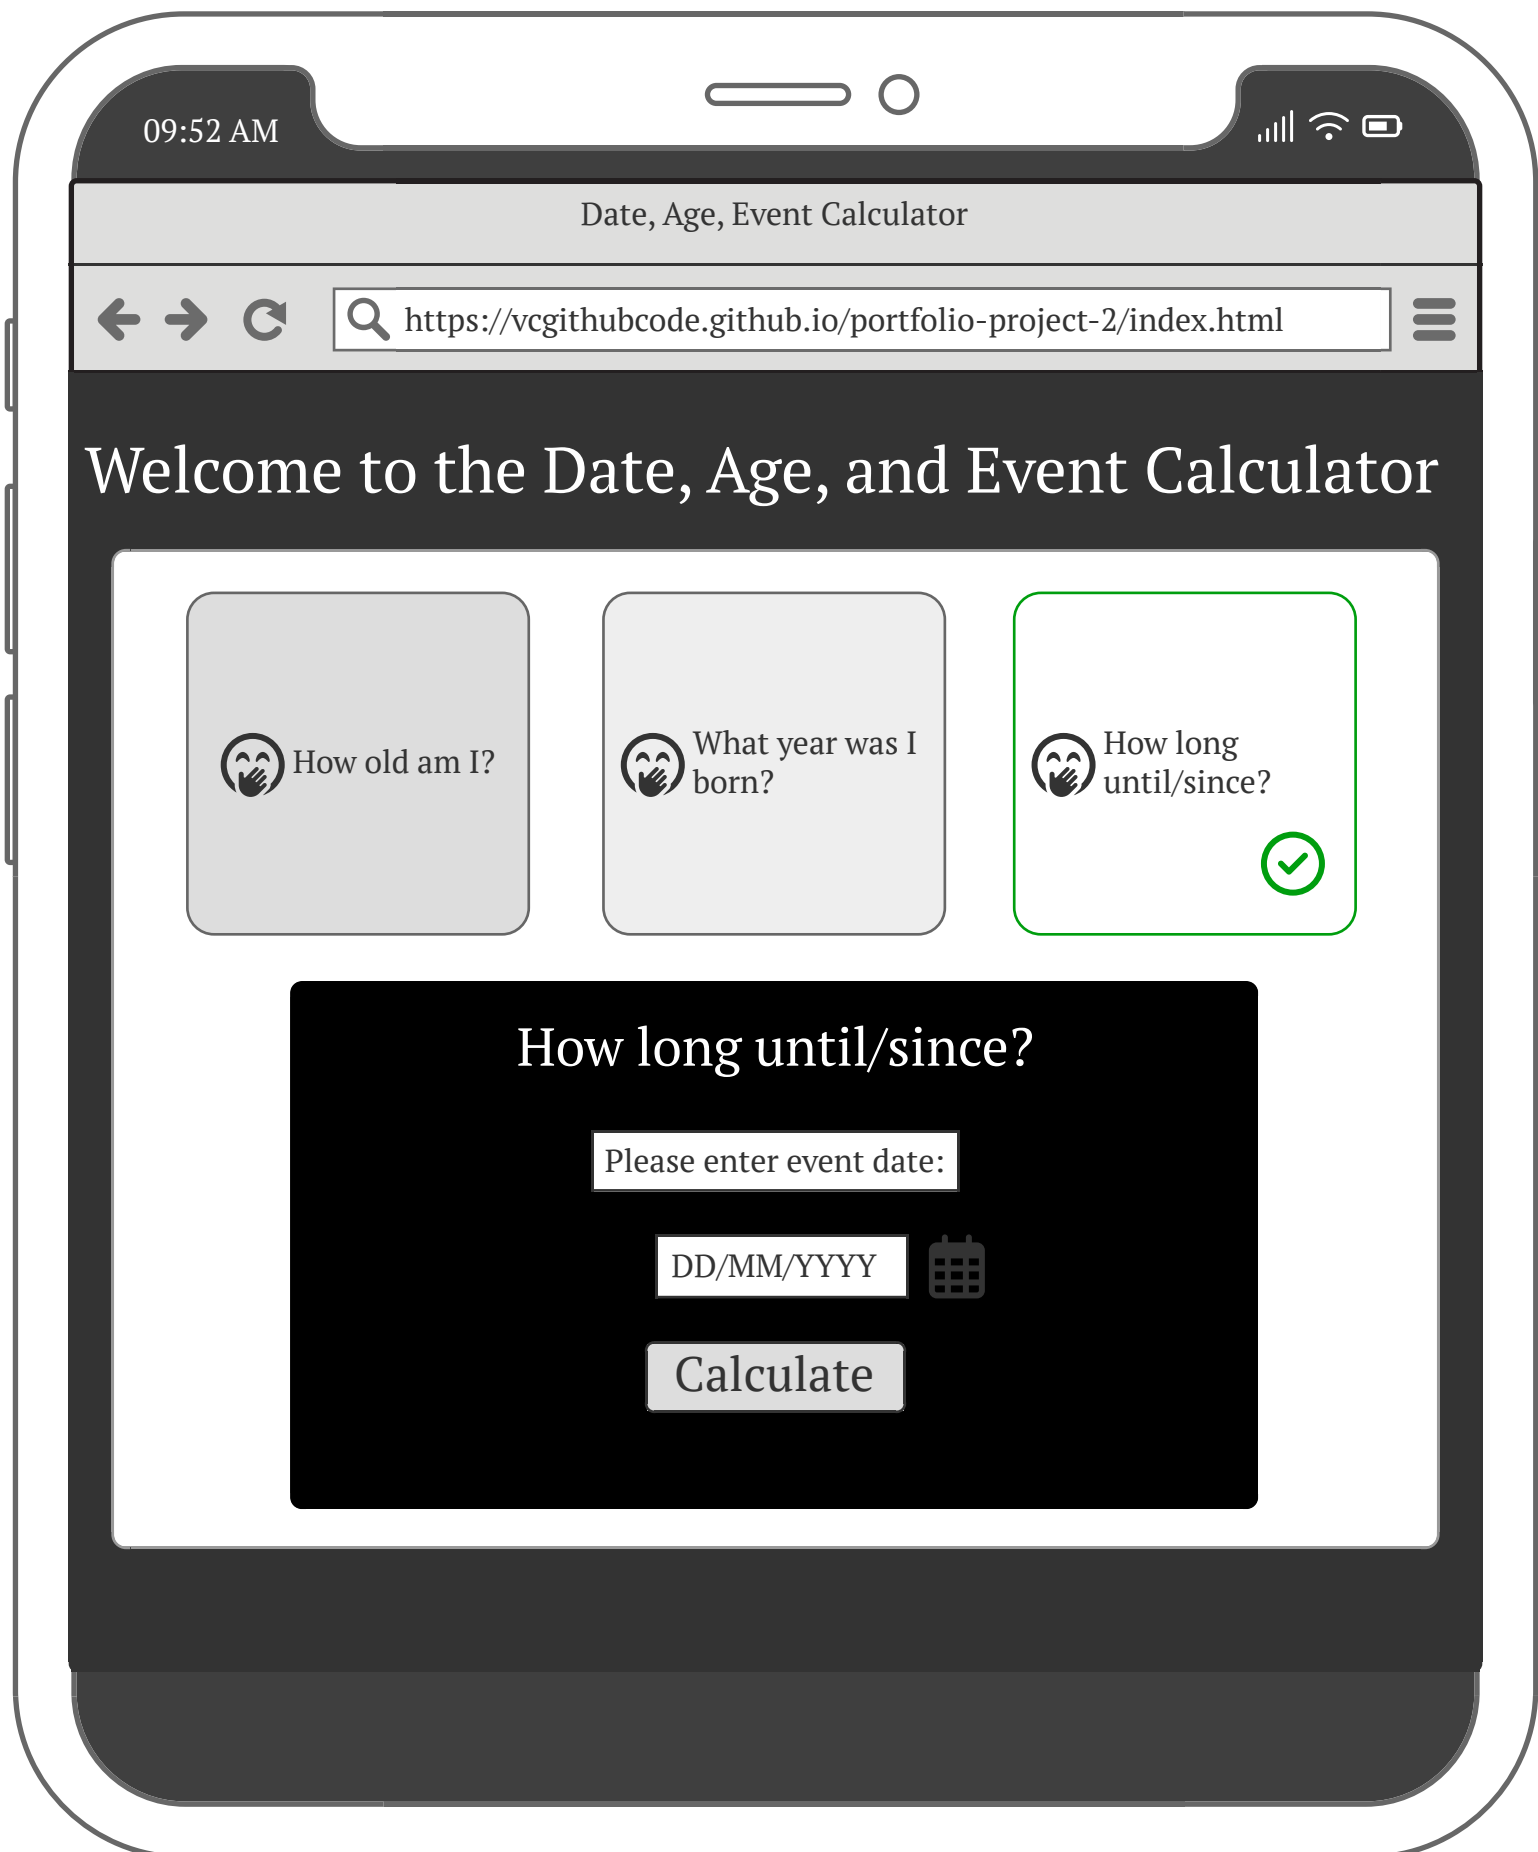

Once the user has calculated their age by entering their date of birth and clicking on the "Calculate" button, this will be the state.

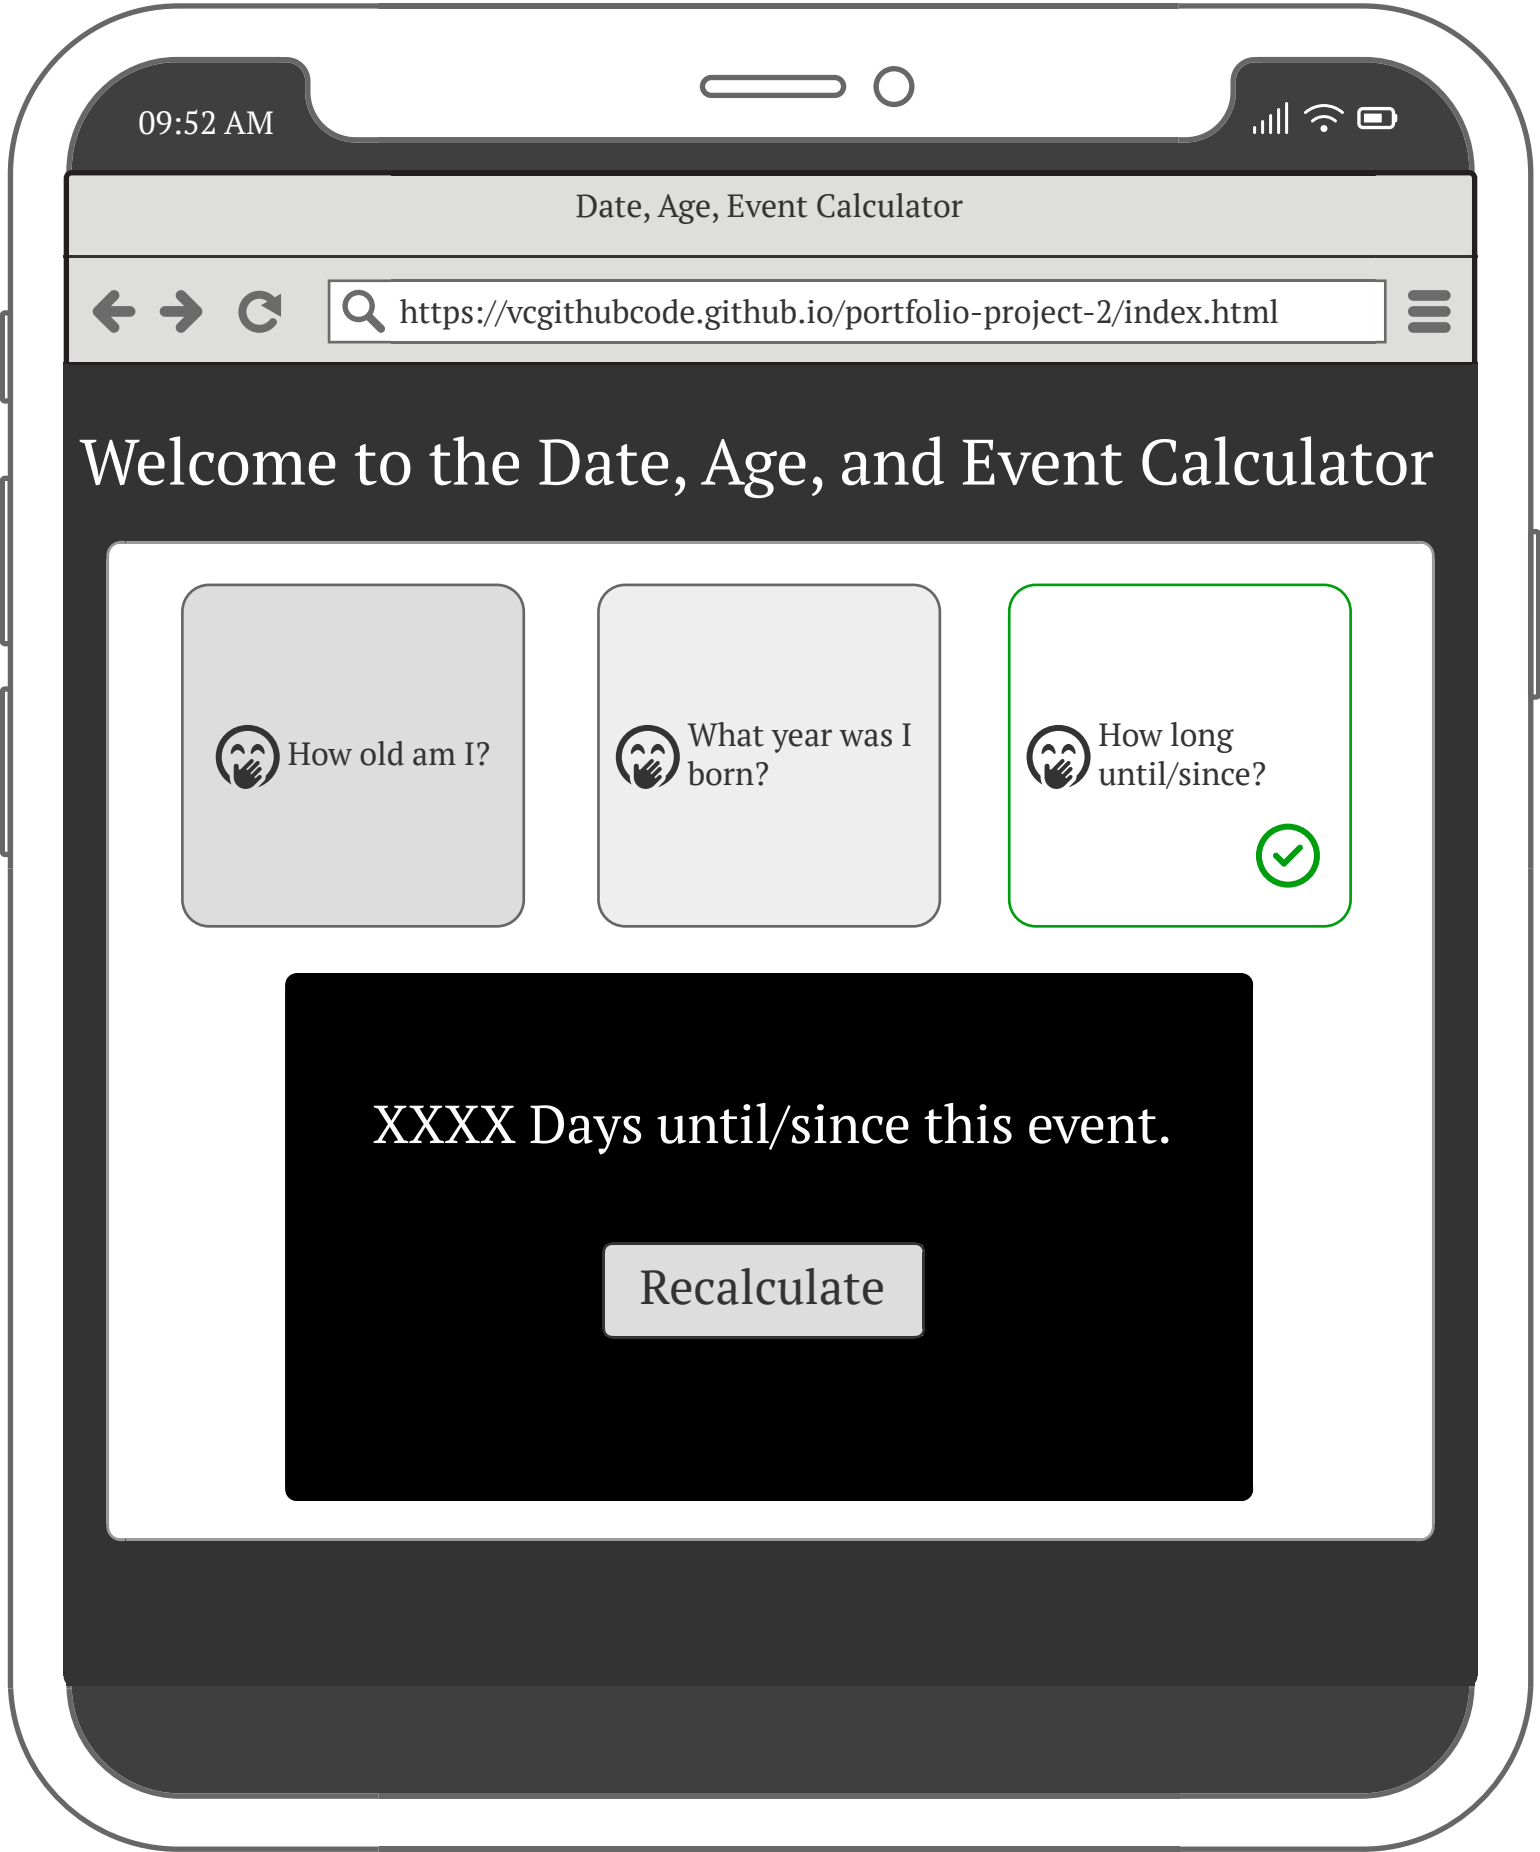

If the user checks the "What year was I born?" option or clicks the "recalculate" button while having this option checked this will be the state.

Once the user has clicked the "Calculate" button on the "What year was I born?" selection this will be the state.

If the user checks the "How long until/since?" option or clicks the "recalculate" button while the "How long until/since?" option is checked this will be the state.

If the user has checked the “How long until/since?” option entered their details and selected the “calculate” button, this will be the state.
